RAILROAD HEADS STRONGLY OPPOSED TO WILSON'S PLAN FOR PREVENTING A STRIKE

Willing to Make Concessions, but Won't Abandon Arbitration.

THE WESTERN CHIEFS ARRIVE

Contrary to Expectations They Are Summoned to White House This Afternoon for a Council of War. Men Will Talk With Congressmen.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—President Wilson toward noon sent word to the railway presidents who are now here asking them to call upon him at the White House at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. They agreed to confer with him, but it was said they would make no statement unless he requested it.

The railroad presidents and their committee of managers worked actively to devise some means of averting the threatened strike which would in the main accept President Wilson's plan, but at the same time preserve the principle of arbitration. They declared they were called against the President's plan as it stands and hoped to agree on some form of counter proposal.

The men's meeting decided that the railroad members should call on senators and representatives from their own states and acquaint them with the men's side of the situation. President Carter of the engineers was the only official who attended the session.

Some of the incoming railway presidents were more optimistic about the situation than those already here. One of the western men declared that if his road alone were involved he unquestionably would resist the demands of the men to the last, but he considered the question a national one and for that reason was sure some common ground would be found to have a settlement on.

One of the suggestions the presidents were prepared to make at the White House was the legislation to create a board or commission to investigate the trouble between the railroad employers or employees. Under such a plan the board would be created by act of Congress and would probably be empowered to examine witnesses to determine the merits of any controversy. Pending its investigation the employers would not be permitted to strike or take a strike vote.

After the board had reached its conclusion from the facts a public report would be made and there would be opportunity for arbitration, but it would not be compulsory. If arbitration was refused the board would send to each employer of the railroads interested a statement of the railroads' position in the matter, the employees' position and the board's findings. These statements would be before every employer when he came to vote on a strike and opportunity would be given for a secret ballot. The next would vote directly on the question of a strike.

With the arrival here of L. W. Hill, president of the Great Northern, and other western railway executives in response to President Wilson's summons, important developments in this threatened nation-wide railway strike situation were looked for.

Louis W. Hill, principal heir to the vast properties of the late James J. Hill, and L. P. Ripley, the veteran president of the Santa Fe, were among the first to arrive. Neither had any statement to make.

The incoming executives conferred with those already here and with the managers committee to familiarize themselves with the negotiations so far. All the western presidents are expected before tomorrow noon. By that time it is expected about 100 railway heads representing properties valued at about $10,000,000,000 will be assembled for the next conference with the President.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Charles E. Patton, secretary of agriculture, has announced that farmers' institutes will be held in Fayette county at the following places: Old Frazer, November 13 and 14; New Salem, November 15 and 16; and Perryopolis, November 17 and 18.

Somerset county dates and places are: Boswell, December 30; Meyersdale, January 1 and 2; Bertha, January 3 and 4; Somerset, January 5 and 6.

Train Is Delayed.

A small freight wreck blocked traffic on the Pennsylvania tracks this morning. Two cars, one steel, the other wood, were pushed together and the steel car smashed the wooden framework of the other, carrying it off its base.

Die Excursion Day.

Eighty tickets to Obiopolis and 20 to Killbuck were sold yesterday morning at the Baltimore & Ohio ticket office. The excursion was one of the largest of the season.

Condition Is Improved.

The condition of Miss Mae King, who underwent a serious operation for appendicitis at the South Side hospital, is much improved.

HERWICK RESIGNS.

Honor from Border Is That Company D Will Get New Captain.

A rumor has reached Connellsville to the effect that Captain J. C. Herwick of Company D, Tenth Regiment, commander of the Connellsville detachment on the border, has resigned. No confirmation has been received from The Courier's correspondent with the troops.

Word from unofficial sources is that the captain has already severed his connection with the guard. Nothing has been heard as to a successor.

SEEKS CANNON FOR PARK HERE

Congressman Hopwood Puts in Bill For Two For Connellsville Park.

The Colonel William Crawford statue will have a genuinely military air, if the bill introduced by Congressman R. P. Hopwood into Congress is passed, as it probably will be. Mr. Hopwood has made a request that two of the cannon that Congress is to dispose of be sent to Connellsville, to be located in the City Hall park.

When it became known that a large number of brass cannon, shells and other obsolete relics of past wars were to be distributed among communities requesting them for memorial purposes, Congressman Hopwood, recalling Connellsville's determination to perpetuate the memory of its martyred pioneer in bronze and stone, put in a bill providing for two of the cannon to be sent here.

A request has also been made for one cannon, which, if obtained, will be placed in Mount Washington cemetery, Perryopolis. Patriotic Perryopolis people are anxious to obtain this relic and Congressman Hopwood is working diligently to land it for them. J. Leslie Francis of Perryopolis is backing the movement to get a gun for the Mount Washington cemetery.

BEE'S WRECK AUTO

When They Buzz Around Jimmy Rush, Machine Hits Ditch.

While driving to Stewart, where his father has lumber interests, James Rush, son of Commissioner Logan Rush, ran into a swarm of bees. To protect himself he pulled his coat over his head, which took his hands from the steering wheel. The automobile went in the ditch and was badly damaged.

The road over the mountains to Stewart is so boulevard and when a driver has to contend with a swarm of bees in addition to running his machine, accidents are likely to happen. Young Rush escaped injury, but the car may never be the same again.

SCHOOL OF MEMPHIS.

Teachers Receiving Instruction at Antietam Today.

The annual school of methods for Fayette county public school teachers opened this morning at 9 o'clock with a record attendance. Addresses were made by J. T. King, John C. Wilson, T. H. Means, C. H. Coppel, C. G. Pierce, Bert Montgomery, L. H. Hess and Miss Hazel Ketter.

In the afternoon the program included papers by R. K. Smith, D. D. Watkins, John C. Wilson, J. E. Roberts, C. C. Vincent, Frank W. Jones and Miss Hazel Ketter. Two sessions will be held tomorrow.

FATHER D'ZUBAY BISHOP

Belonging Greek Pastor Made Head of Pittsburgh District.

High honors were conferred upon Rev. Alexander D'Zubay, pastor of the Greek Church at Leisenring at New York yesterday when he was consecrated bishop of the Pittsburgh district. The ceremony took place in the Russian Cathedral of the Greek Catholic Church.

Father D'Zubay was chief assistant to the late Bishop Ortynsky and at the latter's death was advanced. He will spend some time in New York but on his return will not leave the Leisenring post.

LIZIE'S NEW HOOD.

She Comes From Detroit In Strange and Novel Attire.

Lizzie came on from Detroit last week with a new bonnet, and without any trimming. Yes, after all these years of the same style hood, she is now fitted out with a new one, a sort of poke effect except that it is turned around and the small end worn in front. The same hood has been worn by others for years, but it sure is new for Lizzie; and it's an improvement.

Some military engineer designed the new hood and also fixed up crowned leaders for her.

Congregational Meeting.

The annual congregational meeting of the Methodist Protestant Church will be held Sunday morning at the close of the regular services. Trustees and deacons for the ensuing year will be elected.

FIRST HOSPITAL TRAIN READY FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY

U.S. HOSPITAL CAR-OPERATING CAR

The first hospital train to be built for the United States government has been completed by a Chicago car building concern and has been sent to San Antonio, Tex. The train has a service or combination surgical car, which is in itself a thoroughly equipped operating room; six cars for patients, one standard Pullman, a combination baggage and library car and a kitchen. Photo shows parts of the surgical car.

NEW CASES OF CHILD PLAGUE

Two Develop at Conference on Sunday, Making Four on West Side of That Town.

Two new cases of infantile paralysis developed in Conference yesterday and as a result the local authorities have directed all children under 14 to remain at home. Both cases are on the West side, making four in all that have been discovered in that section of the town.

The new cases are reported at the house of C. M. Cunningham where a four-year-old boy, Max, is the patient, and at the home of Frank Haxner, where a babe in arms is seriously ill with the disease. The Haxner child is said to have small chance of recovery. The Cunningham boy has but a mild attack.

The cases were discovered by Dr. C. W. Prantz and a quarantine established after the diagnosis had been confirmed by Dr. C. P. Lange, Somerset county medical examiner. Two children of Albert Hyatt of the West Side, Conference, are also ill with the disease, making four in all. Clerk Bixler is kept busy these days issuing health permits to those making trips out of the state. This morning he signed nine certificates, and fifteen were given out yesterday to automobiles going into Maryland. Saturday night about the same number of people applied.

Little Leona Skinner of Bear Run, who was attacked by infantile paralysis last week, is showing marked improvement, according to reports from that resort. The child can now move her arms and there are indications that the muscles of her leg may recover their normal functions.

Bear Run is not under quarantine, though children who leave there are to be kept under observation for a short period after they arrive at their homes.

RAISES ROW WITH COP

Hartz Pays $5 for Telling Officer He'd Get Him Fined.

Eight men were tried in police court this morning, most of them being charged with drunkenness. Fines amounted to $8.50.

Davey Hartz was arrested by Patrolman Turner Saturday night on the charge of disorderly conduct. Hartz was one of a party of men who were blocking the sidewalk on Main street. When Turner ordered the men to move on they did so. Hartz, however, gradually became indignant and approached Turner to explain that he was not to be ordered around by a cop. After he had threatened Turner with discharge, the officer arrested him. Hartz left a $5 forfeit and did not appear for a hearing.

NEW STATION PLATFORM

B. & O. Is Making Improvements at Bear Run.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad is building a new and longer station platform at Bear Run. A force of workmen and a pile-driver were on the job last week putting in the posts to support the structure.

The new platform will extend for about 75 feet above the run on the westbound side.

Local Gunners to Shoot.

The Connellsville Gun Club has been invited to participate in a shoot, 50 targets, Lewis class system, to be held Thursday, August 31, by the Uniontown Gun Club. Shooting will begin at 1 o'clock.

ITALIANS LAND AT SALONIKI TO TAKE PART IN CAMPAIGN

Their Arrival Indicates a Real Drive Through the Balkans.

MEANS WAR WITH THE GERMANS

Tentative are Directing Movements of the Bulgarians; Counter Offensives in Macedonia Is Causing Uneasiness Among the Rutenes; Austrians too.

By Associated Press

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Italian troops began to disembark at Saloniki yesterday, says a Havas dispatch from that point.

On leaving their ships, the dispatch says, the Italians passed through Saloniki to camps, preceded by military bands of the Allies and cheered by the populace.

Active participation by Italian troops in the Saloniki campaign would mean the existence of a state of war between Germany and Italy. Germany is directing the operations against the Allies on this front and, as the official German reports show, has forces there. Some Austrian troops also probably are employed and possibly Turks, but the major portion of the army is made up of Bulgarians. Recent reports have indicated the withdrawal of Austrian troops from the Balkans for use on the Russian and Italian fronts.

As the Entente Allies are believed to have a force of some 700,000 British, French and Serbian troops on the Saloniki front, the sending of reinforcements at this time just after the opening of hostilities on a large scale would indicate that the Allies have embarked on a campaign of extensive proportions.

The attempted counter offensive by the German and Bulgarian forces on both fronts of the Entente Allies' front in Macedonia with the apparent intention of hindering the plans of General Sarrail, the Entente commander, will have no effect on the execution of his campaign, it is said here.

The Fourth Greek Army Corps, which had a division at Sores, at Kavala and also at Drama, fell back before the Bulgarians, who are advancing in eastern Macedonia. The Bulgarians have Hernoak and have crossed the Nestos (Mesta) river and advanced to Kavala.

These developments are considered of secondary importance and the Allies take a hopeful view of the success of their plans.

In the fighting at Meglen the Bulgarians, according to a dispatch received here, have 400 killed, 600 wounded and 43 were taken prisoner.

BOND ISSUE PASSES

Dunbar Electors Vote $20,000 for Waterworks and Sewers.

Dunbar's bond issue for a water system and sewers carried the town by a margin of 10 votes at the special election on Saturday. The vote stood 64 to 54.

The council of the borough some time ago proposed to increase the bonded indebtedness of the municipality in the sum of $20,000 to provide a water system for the residents and to build sewers and make street improvements.

The officers of the council will negotiate the sale of the bonds at once so that the money will be available as soon as possible. Work on the piping of the town may begin this year, it is expected.

BREAD TO COST MORE

Another Bakery Announces Impending Change in Price or Weight.

That bakers here will take concerted action in raising the price of bread was indicated by the proprietor of a bakery in a statement this morning. Just what plan will be followed has not been decided, and will not be decided until other bakers or town have been consulted.

"Personally, I prefer to make my bread smaller rather than to increase the price. I am almost sure, however, that the five cent loaf will not be eliminated," this baker said. "I cannot say now just what we will do but there will be no change for several weeks."

BAND EXCURSION.

Trip to Gettysburg and Potomac State Saturday at Midnight.

The Connellsville Military Band's first excursion of the season to Potomac and Gettysburg will be held on Saturday and Sunday. The special train will leave the Western Maryland station Saturday at midnight and return at 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Tickets are being sold by the band boys and at Bishop's restaurant. The rates are $2.25 to Potomac and $2.50 to Gettysburg.

Tin Cans Poisoning.

Thomas Droncy, employed at the Yough levatory, is suffering from a bad attack of blood poisoning of the right hand. Last Monday while working on a brewery truck he accidentally ran a piece of tin into the second finger. Blood poisoning later developed.

STRONG FIGHT WILL BE MADE TO CONVINCE VIEWERS BRIDGE OVER YOUGH IS A NECESSITY

CHANGES HIS CLOTHES.

Placed in Window With New Suits, Tent Gets One of His Own.

Since being placed on exhibition in E. W. Horner's window, the Texas tent sold sent here by Mr. Horner's son, Edgar, has gotten the fever and put on a new suit. He didn't take one out of the window, either. He merely shed his old one and the new attire was underneath.

Mr. Toad is much better looking now. His back is spotted with yellow rings and a yellow line runs down where his spine is, if he has one.

TOWN TO CLOSE FOR BIG PICNIC

Almost Everybody is Going to Oakford Park for the Merchants' Outing.

All committees working on the big Merchants' Picnic at Oakford Park tomorrow report their plans complete and the ticket sellers report that it bids fair to be the biggest outing Connellsville has ever had.

There will be 16 special cars ready to carry the picnickers to the Park and Superintendent Daniel Durie of the West Penn states that he can make more available if needed. A man will be on each car to dispose of tickets to those who have not secured them. Good weather is promised, but there is lots of shelter at Oakford if a shower comes up. The ticket selling contest was to close at noon today but on account of the rush the committee states, the limit will be extended until 7:30 when all contestants are to report to the Crowley-McNeat sales store.

The first car will leave at 7:30 and pick up passengers as far as Pennsville. After that cars will leave every 15 minutes until 9 o'clock. The Dunbar car will start at 8:10; another will leave King's store at South Connellsville at 8 and Leisenring No. 1 people will have a special car leaving at 7:50. Returning, the specials will start at 3:30 and run at frequent intervals. The athletic events begin at 10 a. m., and run in the following order:

50 yard dash for boys under 12, five prizes.

50 yard dash for girls under 12, four prizes.

Potato race for boys under 14, five prizes.

Running broad jump for men, five prizes.

Standing broad jump for men, four prizes.

FIRST PAPER ON BORDER

The Courier a Welcome Arrival at Glenn Springs.

The Courier was the first Fayette county newspaper to reach the Tenth Regiment border detail at Glenn Springs and elsewhere in that inaccessible section of Texas. Walter Rogers, a member of the hospital corps, writes that it was the most welcome visitor to strike camp.

Immediately upon word reaching here that some of the local boys had gone on special duty away from El Paso, The Courier was mailed to them. Copies were sent to Glenn Springs, Marathon and Boquillas.

Walter Rogers says the boys are having a fine time. He likes the life, he declares. They don't get the sand storms around Glenn Springs. Miller and Darr, he reports, have been transferred to McKinney Springs, while Carl Snair sighted a wildcat, which escaped.

TWO ENTER HOSPITAL.

Markeyburg Man and Obiopolis Woman to Undergo Treatment.

Forrest Hall of Markeyburg, 20 years old, underwent a throat operation this morning at the Cottage State hospital. Mrs. A. J. Jeffries of Obiopolis, 65 years old, was admitted for treatment.

Three Excursions.

The excursions of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie and Western Maryland railroads, were well patronized by Connellsville people. Fifty-two boarded the Cumberland train here yesterday. On Saturday 30 went to Baltimore and 27 to Gettysburg.

Will Be Operated On.

Mrs. Paul H. Belghley was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital, Pittsburg on Saturday to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Direct to Dunbar Movement Gets Under Real Headway Friday.

MEANS MUCH TO COMMUNITY

Various Interests Willing to Contribute Liberally to Aid the Project; Development Around Fayette Makes Viaduct a Serious Necessity.

The Direct-to-Dunbar movement will get under real headway this week when the county viewers will meet Friday for the purpose of judging the necessity of a bridge spanning the Yough river at South Connellsville. On Saturday the viewers will merely look over the site of the proposed bridge and new county road. The bridge will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning. On Monday testimony will be taken at Uniontown and P. J. Flynn and others who are interested in the project are arranging to have a large delegation or band to impress upon the viewers the interest that is being taken in the matter.

A determined effort will be made to convince the viewers of the necessity of the bridge. The movement has the support not only of the South Connellsville borough authorities, but of large interests both in South Connellsville and in Connellsville proper.

The legal steps necessary to secure the bridge mean that the matter must go up first to the viewers, who have only power to make a report on the matter; the grand jury, which may approve the proposition or reject it; the court, which passes finally on the findings of the grand jury, and the county commissioners, who will determine whether the county can afford such a proposition.

Indications are that the county commissioners are inclined to favor the proposition as a whole, providing it can be shown that the expenditure would be justified by existing conditions. Advocates of the bridge insist that this will not be difficult to do. The first real fight will be before the grand jury, and it is hoped to have the viewers report ready for opening the battles at the September term of court.

The proposed bridge would cost between $200,000 and $250,000, according to the estimates of competent engineers. Material financial aid could be expected from public service corporations. The Western Maryland is obliged to take care of certain changes in the West Penn tracks, which must be made to provide for the construction of the railroad's yards at Fayette. These will cost between $40,000 and $50,000, and tentatively include the cost of constructing a new viaduct at Fayette. It is reasonably certain that all of this sum could be made available in the construction of the county bridge. The West Penn has already appropriated $15,000 for a foot-bridge across the Yough, and officials of the company are to meet this week to decide just how much they would be willing to contribute towards a bridge which would carry their lines across the river. It has been stated that this amount would probably reach $40,000, and might even be larger.

With private subscriptions aggregating $70,000 or $80,000, the burden on the county would be materially lessened; so much so, those interested are inclined to think, that the project stands a real chance of going through. Not only the cash that is offered, but the spirit of its giving will materially aid the cause. It has been the tendency of public officials to ask those willing to help themselves, and the Yough bridge would probably be an exception.

Construction of the bridge across the Yough would mean much in the development of both South Connellsville and Dunbar. The distance between Connellsville and Dunbar would be materially lessened. If the bridge is constructed, the West Penn's main line would then pass through South Connellsville, instead of traversing a territory which is now unproductive. By changing the main line the company would lose Marietta and Wheeler, but would gain the much more populous territory which is located on the South Connellsville side of the river.

The enlargement of the West Penn power plant and the construction of the Western Maryland yards means an additional number of passengers to be carried. There are at present some 300 men employed at the power house. This number will be increased. The Western Maryland expects to employ at least 100 men in the yards from the start and this number will increase rapidly. The yards will mark the end of a division terminal, and train crews will lay over here. These railroad men will live either in Dunbar or South Connellsville. From Dunbar they now would enjoy trolley service, but there are not the accommodations in Dunbar at present for any great increase in population. On the other hand, South Connellsville now has homes ready for occupants, and plenty of ground on which new ones may be erected. The erection of the electric steel plant near the power house will also put other men into employment and...

LOCAL BOYS IN THE VICINITY

Fortunately No One Is Hurt, But the Call Is Too Close for Comfort!
South Carolina Boys Arrive With Outfits Far Below the Standard.

By O. R. Herwick, Staff Correspondent.
- CAMP STEWART, Va., Aug. 16.
The boys of the Tenth last night were given an exhibition of what a real Texas thunder and lightning storm is.
A bolt struck the end of the line in which the boys of the hospital corps are quarters. It was occupied by six boys of the headquarters company and was just three tents from those occupied by the Conneltsville boys. No one was seriously injured although the boys were given a good shaking. The bolt did break stumps in the tent. Striking an iron pin in the top of the center pole the bolt followed the pole down into the tent splintering it and showing the occupants with the splinters.
It followed the pole down and entered the ground at three different points following the iron tripod. Articles on a shelf built around the center pole were scattered in every direction.
One of the boys had a copy of a testament in a celluloid case, which was badly shattered and burned, the case being entirely destroyed. A mirror on the shelf was smashed into small bits and a picture of one of the boys' girl friend the corner torn off it. The boys were all asleep when the lightning struck, with one exception. He says he just looked like a big ball of fire dancing all around the tent. All the boys were awakened instantly and they say they could hardly get their breath for a few moments following the crash. The smell of brimstone was also noticeable to all the boys of the hospital corps. It reminded them something of the storm at Gettysburg in 1863.

The center pole of the tent caught fire and the boys hurriedly got out and extinguished the blaze. The tent was not damaged in the least and from the outside one could never know anything had happened. The storm was not of long duration, only lasting about a half hour. Although it was about 1 A. M. the boys had considerable difficulty in getting back to sleep.
Joe Reed was one of the occupants of the tent next to the one struck and a mirror he had in his tent had the silver all taken off the back of it, although no other damage was done.

The tent struck was directly in front of division headquarters, not more than 50 yards distant, and most of the boys thought it was the big fire pole
there that had been struck.

The Bible struck was one presented by the Mount Pleasant Ministerial Association to A. J. Clepper of that place.
Clepper says he will always keep the book in remembrance of the occasion.
The rain last night, which was quite lively, has settled the dust and the atmosphere is cool and nice. The day gives promise of being a fine one.

A target has been erected in the rear of the Tenth Regiment and numerous gun practice is indulged in daily now. The sound of the guns reminds one of a hydraulic riveting machine.

Tonight the weekly vaudeville show under the direction of Major Joe Thompson is to be pulled off. This promises to be the best yet. A stage has been erected and everything is in readiness for a big show. These affairs are much enjoyed by the boys and hundreds of visitors from other regiments attend.

The South Carolina troops have arrived and are located across the railroad track from us. They have practically no equipment at all and their tentage is poor, they having no main tents. The Pennsylvania boys are years ahead of them in regard to equipment.

The Tenth hospital corps are now in the midst of their identification taking stamp. The finger prints of all the men are taken and any marks that may be on their body are also recorded. Each finger is taken separately and then the whole hand is taken together. This is some job and will require the balance of the week to finish. The records are forwarded to Washington.

The boys in the Marathon district have not returned yet, and nothing has been heard of their return this week.

The boys are still anxiously awaiting pay, but as yet there has been nothing doing. Every day they hear they are to be paid, only to find when evening comes it is a false alarm.

The applications of married men for release are now coming in thick and fast and it is said they are not coming in anything like they will when some are granted. It takes a month or longer to get an application through, so the boys who have dependents are not reluctant any. It is reported that several of the officers are after release
too. It is also understood that college students are to be returned home
there that make application, by September 1. All indications now point to a six months' stay on the border at least.

Cured of Indigestion After Twenty Years of Suffering.

"After suffering for over 20 years with indigestion and having some of the best doctors here tell me there was no cure for me, I think it only right to tell you for the sake of other sufferers as well as to your own satisfaction, that a 25 cent package of Chamberlain's Tablets not only relieved me but cured me within two months," writes J. L. Grobner, 505 Hobby street, Houston, Texas. Obtainable everywhere. Adv.

VAUGHAN MAKES HIT

Opera Singer Wins Praises at Shady Grove Concert.

Scoring the greatest impression of any one person on the entire evening of the Shady Grove concert, Walter Vaughan, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, yesterday sang to two big crowds in Shady Grove park, accompanied by Nirelia's band. While the selections were not what would be expected from an opera star, they hit a responsive chord in the hearts of the auditors and they were immensely pleased. In the afternoon he sang "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," and "Mother Machree." In the evening he sang "A Perfect Day" and "The Sunshine of Your Smile." As an encore he sang "Mother Machree."

Mr. Nirelia has a fine band, but it is to be regretted that he does not confine his programs to popular airs instead of semi-classics which have become shop-worn by inferior organizations. The brass division yesterday was the best he has ever brought here and the drummer, G. W. "Bones" Logan, of Dockstader minstrel favor, was easily the popular pet. The reced section was headed by A. Pazz of the Grand Opera House orchestra, Pittsburgh, and contained several other stars.

Ben Fields, Pittsburgh, noted song talker, will be the soloist with the band Uniontown Day at the park Thursday. An old Conneltsville boy, C. D. Briabane, who formerly worked in the Humbert mill, will be an addition to the band on that day. He is hailed as the world's greatest trombonist and was formerly a member of Sousa's Band.

STRONG FIGHT TO BE MADE FOR A NEW BRIDGE.

These men must have homes located convenient to their work. With a bridge over the Yough at South Conneltsville, they would be within easy reach of the mill.

The change of the main line would not seriously affect the West Side. The Leisearing line is already operating into Uniontown. Beyond Leisearing avenue the residents of the upper West Side, Wheeler and Morrell would be served by a suburban line similar to that now operated to South Conneltsville.

It is expected that when the view is held Saturday, all of these facts will be presented, and every effort will be made to obtain a favorable report.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARISSA MORIN, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. (confidential) for free advice which will prove helpful.

ARE YOU GUILTY?
A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accused by a local dealer. "Why didn't you say that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality." The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said: "Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had a stuff I have here."

KING REUNION
WILL BE BIG ONE

Byron W. King, Noted Elocutionist, to Be a Guest of Honor.

The eighth annual reunion of the King family will be held at Shady Grove on Saturday, September 2, and from indications it will be the best ever held. Byron W. King, head of the King School of Elocution at Pittsburgh, will be one of the guests of honor. There will be other features of interest.

The ancestors of the King family emigrated to America in the year 1738, from the Alsace-Lorraine region in France. They were Huguenots and on account of religious persecution some of them went to Switzerland and others came to this country. The latter group settled in Montgomery county, Pa., where Samuel King and Hannah Missimer were married in 1792. Soon afterward they came west, locating in Somerset county and raising the following large family: Eliza, married to John Cramer; Mary, married to Benjamin Cramer; Peggy, who was married to George Tedrow; Missimer, who married Polly Rush; Cassimer, who married Rebecca King; Charles, who married Katie Ann Graft; Henry, who married Nancy Whipkey; David, who married Eliza Graft; Harriet, married to Joseph B. Critchfield, and Jeremiah, who married Rebecca Lehart.

The descendants have scattered throughout this section but all of them make an effort to return for the reunion. The officers are Nathaniel King, Owensdale, president; C. K. Brooks, Mill Run, vice president, and Mary B. McCormick, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

"Sea Wasps" Built Here For British to Chase Germany's Submarines

Here are some of the fast "submarine chasers," part of an order of forty, built in South Boston for use in guarding the coast of Great Britain. Six of them have been shipped from Boston. All are named after various fish of the sea. They are 100 horsepower gasoline launchers, of uniform design, forty feet long and capable of making twenty-five knots. The contracts were awarded last spring, and it is said they cost $4,000 each. The boats are very heavily constructed forward, evidently with the idea of mounting a small gun, probably three inch calibre, in the bow. They have long trunk cabins and have accommodations for two or three men. They are of V bottom type, and the motors are equipped with a special carbureting device by means of which either gasoline or heavier oils may be used. The steering gear is like that of an automobile.

DICKERSON RUN MAN WILL CLEAN THREE SCHOOLS

George C. Beatty to Put the Buildings in Shape for Term.

A KICK ABOUT THE ROADS

Dickerson Run and Vanderbilt Residents Claim They are Not Getting a Fair Deal in the Matter of Improvements; Other News and Gossip.

Special to The Courier.

DICKERSON RUN, Aug. 19.—Geo. C. Beatty has secured the contract of cleaning the public school buildings at Liberty, Nellie and at Paul, commencing at Liberty Monday which will take nearly two weeks of hard work. Nothing has been done to the building at Liberty since school closed last May, and it is in not a very nice condition for the limestone dust from the State Road is something that cannot be kept out of the building, which is covered with dust. The weeds have been allowed to grow up which gives the place an ugly and neglected appearance. The Nellie building will be the next one cleaned leaving the Paul building until last.

The work on the State Road has been progressing rapidly since the work started, with the exception of a few days after the heavy rain of two weeks ago which flooded the quaries where the stone were quarried, but since that time the work has been pushed and a fine showing is being made. The road from the Vanderbilt through line to the end of the Dawson bridge is almost impassable and it seems that the worst part of the road is being left until last.

The citizens of Dandara township are paying good money and plenty of it in taxes for good roads. The upper end of the township is getting the benefit of it in first class roads of concrete and brick, while the lower end of the township, which includes Vanderbilt, Liberty and Dickerson Run, are getting a part of the old A. J. Hill farm dumped on the road, and the citizens and traveling public will have to put up with it and at the same time pay for it. Brick could be laid as cheap as the stuff they are dumping on the roads now. Instead of putting down a concrete curb like they are doing on the upper end, they are dumping yellow clay on each side of the road to hold the roadbed in place. The citizens are willing to pay but want the roads furnished. They are from Dandara.

A HISTORICAL OLD TREE.

One Planted on Long Island by Senator Rufus L. King.

Perhaps the most historic tree in the vicinity of Junction is that on the grounds of King manor, in front of the east entrance, planted over a hundred years ago. It is believed, by Senator Rufus L. King himself, that the distinguished contemporary of Washington and Jefferson and Hamilton and brilliant defender of federal principles planted this tree with his own hands. It was testified to by the late Hon. John A. King, grandson of Rufus L. King, in a conversation he had on the grounds of the manor on the occasion of the transfer of the historic property to the village of Junction.

John A. King, in talking with Judge Fleming at that time, related to this old sycamore or buttonwood tree and mentioned that his eminent grandfather had planted it. He said, "I think I'll have a photo put on the tree to perpetuate the fact." Whether he ever did so or not, there is no plate there at the present time.

There are several big holes in the trunk, which have been filled in with cement to preserve it. At one time it sheltered a doghouse which stood in the hole at the bottom of the trunk. It is related that in the days of Rufus King and his son, Governor King, there was a bell on the tree, which was rung when people appeared at the gate to give notice that they stood waiting to be admitted. The tree belongs to the plant tree family. It is doubtless one of the finest specimens of this family to be found in this country.—Long Island Life.

Charles Durborrow, the Philadelphia long distance swimmer, uses a pair of water goggles. They are made of medical adhesive plaster, cutting it so that it will fit the face from temple to temple and from forehead to cheeks, leaving the nostrils free. Holes are inserted for the eyes, and a strip of transparent cellophane is fastened against them with more adhesive plaster, to serve instead of glass lenses. When ready for the water the face is rubbed clean with alcohol, the plaster is heated on the edges, and the mask is set in place and pressed firmly against the flesh, shaping it at the nose so that no opening is left anywhere. The warmed plaster clings at once and does not pull off even a drop of water to seep through.

Epictetus.

The "Discourses of Epictetus" were written not by the philosopher himself, but by his faithful pupil Arrian, afterward the historian of Alexander the Great. Arrian tells us that he took down the sayings of his master at the time they were delivered, and thus we may rely upon the substantial correctness of the discourses. Epictetus wrote nothing, and but for the thoughtfulness of his affectionate disciple we would have known nothing of his wonderful teachings—teachings which have inspired many of the greatest men who have lived during the past 2,000 years.

WILSON AND THE TRAINMEN.

President Wilson has made a brave effort to settle the threatened railroad strike by declaring that the trainmen's demand for an eight-hour day and time-and-a-half for all overtime is a just demand and such other minor matters as are in dispute can be settled by a Federal commission which the Democratic administration will kindly undertake to supply. Incidentally the President is a candidate for reelection.

Three different interests are involved in this controversy. In character they are political, personal and financial. The interest of the President is political; of the trainmen, personal; of the railroad managers, financial.

President Wilson has been eager to arbitrate the railroad matter and he has decided it in feverish haste with the obvious hope of reaping the political reward thereof.

The decision is satisfactory to the trainmen for the reason that it meets their material demands. The demand for an eight-hour day is merely a demand for ten hours pay for eight hours work with 50% extra for all overtime above eight hours instead of extra pay for time now worked above ten hours.

The eight-hour day, however, is a mere pretext. It is true that eight hours has come to constitute a common unit of daily wage service, and where the hours can be so limited without interference with the work of the mill or factory or other industry it has in most cases been done. The eight-hour day is perfectly practicable in the railroad shops, for example, but not on the railroad trains. In the operation of the latter there can be no day but the 24-hour day. Trains must run at all hours of the day to meet the public requirements. In the transportation service it would be impossible to make each train-run eight hours long. In this section train-men are scheduled to average less than eight hours, but in practice there is much overtime.

The trainmen stand to win their demands because they have made them at the psychological moment. They have grasped opportunity by the beard, and it looks like a struggle to hold it.

The railroad managers realize that they are fighting a losing game, but they are contesting every point with an eye single to one purpose, namely, that of putting themselves in position to pass the cost of this proposed wage increase on to the shipper and the ultimate consumer through a sufficient increase in freight rates, hence their proposition to arbitrate the question or to refer it all to the Interstate Commerce Commission. They would no doubt prefer the latter. The railroad presidents say in this connection:

We stand for the principle of arbitration of the railroad question. It is the ideal toward which public sentiment and legislation of this country have been steadily tending. The settlement of disputes between employers and employees particularly in the case of public service corporations rather than the strike action to which the Federal law has been perfected or improved by amendments framed in conference with some of the railroad labor leaders now ready to arbitrate, and includes in its scope all controversies in railroad service. We invoke that principle now and are willing for the Interstate Commerce Commission to arbitrate the whole question. More than that we are willing for the President of the United States to appoint a commission of disinterested persons to arbitrate all matters in dispute at neither the Interstate Commerce Commission nor the machinery of the Newlands Act is satisfactory to the labor leaders.

In the meantime the Paramount interest in this controversy is the public interest. The public does not presume to dictate the manner and terms of settlement, but it demands that there be no paralysis of the transportation system of the country which as must inevitably follow a strike.

ANOTHER IMPENDING CRISIS.

If they could, the apologists for the Democratic administration would lead the country into a false serenity over the situation in national affairs. They would have it believe that the future is full of promise of domestic peace and tranquility and unexampled prosperity, provided only that Wilson be returned to the White House. They would blind our eyes to the danger which confronts us at home and abroad as the results of unstable policies and the first fruits of failure to safeguard the rights and privileges of American citizens.

They themselves see no importance or significance in the result of the approaching election other than as a means of retaining an army of Democratic Democrats in office. Fortunately for the country others do see clearly and point out vividly the full import of the issues to be determined at the November polls. As vivacious Democrats of Democratic pretensions, shams and follies the honors must be divided between Charles S. Hughes and Senator Penrose. The former on the stump is holding up to public view the utter incompetence of Democratic administration. The latter in performing a no less useful function by his speeches in the Senate than he has in the following signed statement just issued to the public:

It is generally admitted that the approaching election constitutes a crisis in the affairs of the country of greater importance than any that has occurred since the Civil War. Not only are the domestic problems of overwhelming importance, but the whole situation here is a part of the world situation of the war in Europe and the endless complications with Mexico.

In 1912 the Republican party was defeated largely because of the willful split in the party, which permitted the election of Wilson as President, with a Democratic majority in both houses of Congress. Wilson, however, did not receive a majority of the votes cast, and had the Republicans been united he would not have been elected. It is true that the Republican party has been in a state of confusion and a new generation of voters has grown up who were not familiar with the industrial disaster preceding the election of Wilson's second administration.

Under the Underwood Tariff bill our tariff of duties is being lowered in a way that will result in a loss of revenue to the Government of $100,000,000. This is a very serious situation, and it is evident that the primary reason for Republican defeat in 1912 was the break in the party. Now the party is united. The people have had their eyes opened to the fact that the Democratic administration is not only incompetent, but it is also dishonest.

The threatened strike of the school principals of North Union township is attracting public attention and exciting no end of comment, but thus far there has been no appeal to President Wilson. The Pittsburgh Gazette Times analyzes the situation and suggests the remedy of a progressive increase in the schedule of remuneration. It says:

Principals of schools in North Union township, Fayette county, have agreed among themselves not to go to work at the opening of the approaching school term unless they are granted an increase in wages. This is a most important issue at a time when the school authorities are most likely to be embarrassed by a dearth of teachers. The principals point to the maximum wage of $600 a year, which means $5 a day. Wages range from this down to $450, or $5 a day. They contend further that teachers have a common law right to a 20 per cent increase in pay. The school board in Fayette county has been put in a difficult position by the action of the principals. It is a question of whether to pay the increase or to face the possibility of a strike.

THE INNER TUBE.

The inner tube is a one-piece union suit which is worn inside of a rubber tire. It is one of the most expensive items of underwear, but it does not deter people who are four years behind at the grocery store from buying it.

The providence of the inner tube is to hold air and anything else that it runs into. When an inner tube is burnt and new it will hold a large quantity of air for a long time and cause the owner to glow over people whom he passes on the road, engaged in changing tires with a defiant look. But when the inner tube is old and it is liable to rip open in some unexpected spot and allow its contents to evaporate with a deadly and vindictive hiss. The inner tube is a one-piece union suit, crowded full of grief and misfortune to start out on a picnic with a party of loved relatives and good friends, and have a trusted inner tube let go of eighty pounds of free air with a long, mournful sigh.

Most men remove the women of the party to a safe distance to erect a hollow-tile sofa. While doing so, however, most men remove the women of the party to a safe distance, where they will not be contaminated by the sulphurous tenor of the conversation. By rights, the inner tube should be made of fourteen-inch armor plate, with a concrete base. This would make motoring both safe and pleasant and prevent many a man from falling from grace with a profane thud.

Does it Pay?

Does it pay to advertise in dull seasons? No use answering a question with a theory when facts are at hand—facts like these:

August used to be the dullest month of all the year in the furniture business—now it is the very busiest because advertising turned dullness into activity.

January was formerly a time when men's clothing stores did no business. Now, by advertising, they make record sales.

Right down the list instances can be cited where merchants and manufacturers have turned supposedly dull periods into busy ones.

And they did it by advertising—by newspaper advertising in most instances.

Sitting around cussing the weather won't ring the cash register, but ADVERTISING WILL. Newspaper advertising coupled with good merchandising will drive any dull month from the calendar. Perhaps not at once, but little by little.

Now is the time to increase business for the immediate present and get a flying start for the Fall. Now is the time to make your advertising plan and to begin an aggressive bid for business.

Perhaps the advertising manager of this newspaper can make some suggestions, or if you want information about other cities write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers, World Building, New York.

BOX LUNCHEONS.

All Housewives Should Make Attractive Sandwiches.

BREAD TO BE EVENLY CUT.

All "Eats" Taken At Fresco Should Include Plain Food, Relishes, Fruits, Salad Greens and Dessert, Care Being Taken as to Waxed Paper Wrappers.

In sandwich making the bread should be cut evenly, and the thickness of the slice should depend on the vigor and the appetite of the consumer. Thinly sliced bread appeals to the person who is not a voracious worker and who therefore has not the need for large quantities of food. Whether thick or thin slices of bread are to be used is not so important to the palate as the quantity in which the butter and filling are used. Butter should be softened by creaming it with a spoon on a plate and should be spread evenly over the entire surface of the slice of bread. This method is easier and quicker than spreading the bread with hands of unsanitized fingers, which disfigures the sandwich. Both slices of bread should be buttered, since butter keeps the bread moist and prevents the filling from seeping into the bread and thus making the sandwich wet and unappetizing. A smeared, crumbly, soggy sandwich is not a tempting luncheon. A sandwich should be wrapped in waxed paper in order to prevent it from drying.

Foods that are likely to dry out, to become discolored by pressure, to absorb other flavors or to distribute their own flavor—such as cake, cookies, pieces of meat, slices of onion, certain fruits, cheese, stuffed eggs or eggs without their shells—should be separated from other foods by wrapping them in wax paper or, if that is not available, in plain clean paper.

Preserves, as jam and the like should be put in small, clean, sealed containers. Although many persons know how to prepare package meals, a large number of others do not. After food selection and food preparation the third consideration that demands attention is careful packing. Surely the means and method of the proper packing of a luncheon should receive thought. The box luncheon must be an example of neatness, neatness and attractiveness. Without these qualifications the most nutritious food may lose much, if not all, of its value for unattractive food has no appeal to appetite and digestion.

The materials essential to good packing include wax paper, paper napkins, box, basket or dinner pail.

Fiber boxes seem inexpensive, but since they easily dampen or become soiled and cannot be washed, they have to be replaced. When not in use fiber boxes should be well aired.

Tin boxes can be easily cleaned, and they prevent the drying out of their contents. Lunch baskets are light and well aired.

Only wrapped food should be laid against the basket. Even if this precaution is followed the basket will need to be scrubbed frequently with soapy water and thoroughly dried.

FOR BATHERS.

A Kit to Take on Your Vacation Dips.

For the bathing girl there is a special bathing kit of toilet requisites, packed in a tin box which will not take up much room in the bathing bag. The box contains talcum powder, cold cream, sunburn lotion and toilet water, a big powder puff and a lady's wash powder pail. Vanity belongings, such as rouge and lip stick, may be added to the assortment if desired, and in a crevice in the box the four-handed woman will tuck a supply of bathplugs, large and small. The big powder puff is for powdering the skin freely after the bath, the lady's wash pail for use in powdering the face. The toilet water will be refreshing on face and neck if salt water has left them dry and sticky, a combined stare which salt water only is able to produce. The cold cream should be rubbed into the skin of arms and neck before going into the water as a guard against sunburn, for even in the hottest sun and heat it is impossible if the skin is well creamed. It is not necessary to leave one's bathhouse showing a shiny nose and glistening arms. If the cream is thoroughly rubbed into the skin and the latter dusted over with talcum the apron will not be apparent. And the sunburn lotion in the kit is for use if the cream has been omitted with disastrous result to complexion and nose.

SHOWED HIM THE DOOR.

And Dickens Went and Stood Not Upon the Order of His Going.

Colonel B. was the proprietor of a widely known old house in the south which three-quarters of a century ago had earned its reputation as a well conducted tavern.

When Charles Dickens came to America he stopped at this southern house. He was hardly settled in his room before Colonel B. was at the door. He assured him that his horses, his wines, all the lavish hospitality of a state famed for its generosity, stood at the convenience of the distinguished visitor.

Dickens received the proffer coldly. In London one did not accept a tavern as a social equal. So it was that he returned the courteous offer by saying that when he wished the services of the innkeeper he would send for him.

For sixty seconds Colonel B. stood silent, his great face growing redder all the while. Finally he stretched out a long arm toward Dickens.

"You go, sir," he stammered. "And do not stand upon the order of your going."

The novelist went. And it is to be trusted he had learned that the American hotel keeper of that day and age was not to be confused with his brother in far-off Europe.—Edward Ellingerford in Saturday Evening Post.

Social Structure.

What is a social structure? It may be an ant hill or a democracy. It is usually composed of a mass of individuals banded together for mutual disagreement. It is centrifugal and centrifugal. Each individual would like to get out of it, but he doesn't know how. Small masses of individuals, also banded together, would like to get out of it, but they don't know how. Larger masses of individuals banded together would like to get out of it, but they don't know how. Nobody wants everybody else to stay. Everybody doesn't want anybody to stay. The result is that nobody can get rid of anybody.

Hence the social structure.—Life

Origin of Geometry.

There is little doubt that the science of geometry had its origin in Egypt. The annual overflow of the Nile wiped out all landmarks and boundaries, and some reliable means of measuring the earth was an absolute necessity; hence the rise of geometry, which means earth measurement. From all accounts the philosopher Thales took the science from Egypt to Greece, where it was greatly improved and carried very near the perfection it finally reached through the discoveries of the celebrated Descartes of the seventeenth century.

BUNNY AT THE FAIR.

"Are you going to the fair?" cried Bunny, scampering up to Joey Squirrel. "We are all off and are going to have such fun."

"Yes, I'm coming. I've never seen a fair before. Will you take me with you?" asked Joey.

"Yes, come along," replied Bunny.

In a few moments Joey joined his friend and the little family of bunnies, and they quickly ran down the woodland path to the field.

You should just have seen the crowd of animals.

There were so many and such stores of nuts and buns that Joey was quite bewildered.

There were some camels there to give the people rides, and Joey liked that much better; he and Bunny went right to the other side of the field on one. There they saw some mice doing tricks and stayed watching them for quite a long time.

"We had better go back now; mother will wonder where we are," said Bunny, but the crowd was so great that they could not find her again.

"What shall we do?" asked poor little Joey, beginning to cry.

"I know—we'll sit under the hedge till the rest have nearly all gone, then we shall see her," answered Bunny bravely.

Suddenly Joey said: "I know—I'll run up this tree, and then I can see all over the fair. Shall I?"

"Yes, do," said Bunny.

He was out of sight in a moment and found he could see all that was going on, and after a few moments he spied Mrs. Bunny on the other side of the field talking to Policeman Hippopotamus.

"I see her!" he cried and, scrambling down, took his little friend's hand and raced out. It was hard work to get through the crowd, but they reached Mrs. Bunny at last, just as she was beginning to cry.

"Oh, how glad I am to see you!" she said, kissing them both. "Where have you been?"

"We were lost, only Bunny said we'd stay under the hedge, so nobody hurt us," explained Joey.

"And Joey climbed a tree and found out where you were," added Bunny.

And then his mother kissed them again and took them home.

She gave Joey a lovely supper before he went home, and then he and Bunny said good night to each other and went to bed, quite tired out with such an exciting day.

Midnight Spreads.

For years it has been drilled into our ears that we should not eat before going to sleep, and we have foregone many a pleasant hour of sleep, sacrificing our good health. And now along comes a noted physician and tells us that many morning headaches are merely the result of hunger. This does not mean that we can immediately proceed to gorge ourselves with all sorts of sweets and not have to pay the penalty the next morning. Sweets should be eschewed during the midnight repast, and one should substitute some wholesome sandwiches. Cheese sandwiches are wholesome and nourishing and can be eaten with impunity, even during the wee small hours.

A BEAUTY HINT.

How to Wash Your Face in the Right Way.

One of the methods of acquiring a clear, white complexion is so simple that it is almost amusing. It is merely to wash the face properly. This should be as regularly a part of the toilet at night as brushing the teeth. The procedure is in this wise: With hot water and a pure white soap thoroughly cover the face with lather, using a good complexion brush. The latter is better than a washcloth because it "scrubs" better and acts as a good stimulant to the blood vessels of the face. One need not be afraid of this thorough scrubbing, for long hours of rest in bed prevent any harm coming to the tender skin afterward. When the face is rinsed well with tepid water and gently and thoroughly dried with a soft towel rub a good cold cream into the open pores. When this has been thoroughly spread over the face and has remained there five or ten minutes gently wipe it off with a soft cloth, preferably silk. Do not rub the face too dry, for some of the cream should be left in the outer layers of the skin. The severe scrubbing thoroughly softens and cleanses the skin of all dirt and skin, while the cream nourishes and whitens it.

PICNIC LUNCHEONS.

Hint About Carrying Food Daintily and Easily.

In homes where automobile lunches or picnic parties are frequent it is a good idea to have on hand several fresh, clean egg boxes with compartments, in which eggs come from the store. Stuffed eggs can then be rolled in paraffin paper and stood upright in each compartment so they will travel without crushing or losing shape. Neither need the halves of the egg be kept together with toothpicks, as is frequently done. Dainty rolled sandwiches also keep their shape in these individual compartments. Loaf cake can be cut in pieces of a size to fit these partitioned boxes by lifting out the divisions and pressing the pasteboard edge on the freshly frosted surfaces of the cake. Replace the partitions in the box and allow the frosting to become firm. Then cut in squares as indicated by the markings. Each piece of cake will be of a size to fit. This eliminates carrying a knife and insures the neat appearance of the cake.

POLLY AND HER PALS—Take it From Aunt Maggie, it Goes "As Is!"—By Cliff Sterrett.

The LONE STAR RANGER

A ROMANCE OF THE BORDER

By ZANE GREY

AUTHOR OF
"THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS"
"RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE", ETC.

That haunting visitation left Duane sitting there in a cold sweat, a remorse crawling at his heels, realizing the curse that was on him. He divined that never would he be able to keep off that phantom. He remembered how his father had been eternally pursued by tories of accusing guilt, how he had never been able to forget in work or in sleep those men he had killed.

The hour was late when Duane's mind let him sleep, and then dreams troubled him. In the morning he believed himself in a dream, that in the gray gloom he had suddenly in finding his horse. Day had just broken when he struck the old trail again.

He rode hard all morning and halted in a shady spot to rest and graze his horse. In the afternoon he took to the trail at an easy trot. The country grew wilder. Bald, rugged mountains rose the level of the monotonous horizon. About three in the afternoon he came to a little river which marked the boundary line of his hunting territory and followed it upstream.

In this kind of travel and camping he spent three more days, during which he explored a number of trails, and one where cattle—stolen cattle, probably—had recently passed. He followed the road until a late hour, when, striking the yellow banks again and hence the neighborhood of the river, he picked up his horse and lay down to rest. But he did not sleep. His mind bitterly revolved the fate that had come upon him. He made efforts to think of other things, but in vain. Every moment he expected the chill, the sense of loneliness that yet was ominous of a strange visitation, the peculiarly lightning lights and shadows of the night—those things that presaged the coming of Cal Bland. Doubtless Duane fought against the insidious phantom, he kept telling himself that it was just imagination, that it would wear out in time, still in his heart he did not believe what he hoped. But he would not give up; he would not accept the ghost of his victim as a reality.

Gray dawn found him in the saddle again, hauled for the river. Half an hour of riding brought him to the dense chaparral and willow thickets. These he threaded to come at length to the ford. Once upon the opposite shore, he reined his horse and looked back. This action marked his acknowledgment of his situation; he had voluntarily sought the refuge of the outlaws; he was beyond the pale.

The trail led into a road which was hard packed and smooth from the tracks of cattle. He doubted not that he had come across one of the roads used by border riders. He headed into it, and had scarcely traveled a mile when, turning a curve, he came point-blank upon a single horseman riding toward him. Both riders wheeled their horses sharply.

"Howdy," replied Duane shortly. They rode toward each other, closing half the gap, then they halted again.

"I seen you ain't no ranger," called the rider, and shot a look at Duane.

He laughed loudly, as if he had made a joke.

"How'd you know I wasn't a ranger?" asked Duane curiously. Some how he had instantly divined that this horseman was no officer, or even a rancher trailing stolen stock.

"Wal, said the fellow, starting his horse forward at a walk, "a ranger'd never get ready to run the other way from one man."

He laughed again. He was small and wiry, sturdy of build, and snarled to the teeth, and he headdressed a fine bay horse. He had quick, dancing brown eyes, at once frank and bold, and a coarse, bronzed face. Evidently he was a good natured ruffian.

Duane acknowledged the truth of the assertion, and turned over in his mind how suddenly the fellow had guessed him to be a hunted man.

"My name's Luke Stevens an' I hail from the river. Where you?" said this stranger.

Duane was silent.

"I reckon you're Buck Duane," went

Duane, quietly. "And I'll go to Merce with you."

Next moment he was riding down the road with Stevens. Duane had never been much of a rider, and now he found speech difficult. But his companion did not seem to mind that. He was a jovial, rollicking fellow, probably glad now to hear the sound of his own voice. Duane listened, and sometimes he thought with a pang of the distinction of name and heritage of blood his father had left to him.

CHAPTER III.

Late that day, a couple of hours before sunset, Duane and Stevens, having rested their horses in the shade of some mesquites near the town of Mercer, saddled up and prepared to move. "Buck, as we're lookin' for grub, an' not trouble, I reckon you'd better hang up out here," Stevens was saying, as he mounted. "You see, towns an' sheriffs an' rangers are always lookin' for new fellows gone bad. They sort of forget most of the old boys, except those as are punch bad. Now, nobody in Mercer will take notice of me. Lookin' there's been a thousand men run into the river country to become outlaws since yours truly. You left walt here an' be ready to ride hard. Maybe my beettin' sin will get operation in spite of my good intentions. In which case there'll be no more."

His pause was significant. He grinned, and his brown eyes danced with a kind of wild humor.

"Stevens, have you got any money?" asked Duane.

"Money?" exclaimed Luke blankly. "Say, I haven't owned a two-bit piece since—well, for some time."

"I'll furnish money for grub," returned Duane. "And for whisky, too, providin' you hurry back here—without making trouble."

"Shore you're a downright good pard," declared Stevens, in admiration, as he took the money. "I give my word, Buck, an' I'm here to say I never broke it yet. Lay low, an' look fer me back quick."

With that he spurred his horse and rode out of the mesquites toward the town. At that distance about a quarter of a mile, Mercer appeared to be a cluster of low adobe houses, set in a grove of cottonwoods. Pastures of alfalfa were dotted by horses and cattle. Duane saw a sheep herder driving in a meager flock.

Presently Stevens rode out of sight into the town. Duane waited, hoping the outlaw would make good his word. Probably not a quarter of an hour had elapsed when Duane heard the clear reports of a Winchester rifle, the clear reports of rapid hoofbeats, and yells unmistakably the kind to mean danger for a man like Stevens. Duane mounted and rode to the edge of the mesquites.

He saw a cloud of dust down the road and a bay horse running fast. Stevens apparently had not been wounded by any of the shots, for he had a steady seat in his saddle, and his riding, even at that moment, struck Duane as admirable. He carried a large pack over the pommel, and he kept looking back. The shots had ceased, but the yell increased. Duane saw several men running and waving their arms. Then he spurred his horse and got into a swift stride, so Stevens would not pass him. Presently the outlaw caught up with him. Stevens was grinning, but there was now no fun in the dancing eyes. It was a devil that danced in them. His face seemed a shadow paler.

"Was just comin' out of the store," yelled Stevens. "Run plumb into a rancher—who knowed me. He opened up with a rifle. Think they'll chase us."

"They covered several miles before there were any signs of pursuit, and when horsemen did move into sight out of the cottonwoods Duane and his companion steadily drew further away."

"No horses in that bunch to worry us," called out Stevens.

Duane had the same conviction, and he did not look back again. He rode onward to the ford, and was constantly aware of the rapid closing of heels behind, as Stevens kept close to him. At sunset they reached the willow brakes and the river. Duane's horse was winded and lashed with sweat and lather. It was not until the crossing had been accomplished that Duane halted to rest his animal. Stevens was riding up the low, sandy bank. He reined in the saddle. With an exclamation of surprise, Duane leaped out and ran to the outlaw's side.

Stevens was pale, and his face bore beads of sweat. The whole front of his shirt was soaked with blood.

"You're shot!" cried Duane.

"Wal, who said I wasn't? Would you mind givin' me a lift—an' this here pack?"

Duane lifted the heavy pack down and then helped Stevens to dismount. The outlaw had a bloody foam on his lips, and he was spitting blood.

"Oh, why didn't you say so?" cried Duane. "I never thought. You seemed all right."

"Wal, Luke Stevens may be as glib as an old woman, but sometimes he doesn't say anything. It wouldn't have done no good."

Duane had him sit down, removed his shirt, and washed the blood from his breast and back. Stevens had been shot in the breast, fairly low down, and the bullet had gone clear through him. His ride, holding himself and that heavy pack in the saddle, had been a feat little short of marvelous. Duane did not see how it had been possible, and he felt no hope for the outlaw. But he plugged the wounds and bound them tightly.

"Feller's name was Brown," Stevens said. "Me an' him fell out over a hoss I stole from him over in Huntsville. We had a shootin' scrape then. Wal, as I was standin' my hoss back there in Mercer I seen this Brown, an' seen him before he seen me. Could have killed him, too. But I wasn't breathin' my word to you. I kind of hoped he wouldn't spot me. But he did—an' first shot he got me here. What do you think of this hole?"

"It's pretty bad," replied Duane; and he could not look the cheerful outlaw in the eyes.

"I reckon it is. Wal, I've had some bad wounds I lived over. Guess maybe I can stand this one. Now, Buck, get me some place in the brakes, leave me some grub an' water at my hand, an' then you clear out."

"Leave you here alone?" asked Duane sharply.

"Shore. You see I can't keep up with you. Brown an' his friends will follow us across the river a ways. You've got to think of number one in this game."

"What would you do in my case?" asked Duane curiously.

"Wal, I reckon I'd clear out an' save my hide," replied Stevens.

Duane felt inclined to doubt the outlaw's assertion. For his own part, he decided his conduct without further speech. First he untied the horses, filled canteens and water bag, and they loped the pack upon his own horse. That done, he lifted Stevens upon his horse, and, holding him in the saddle, turned into the brakes, being careful to pick out hard or grassy ground that left little signs of tracks. Just about dark he ran across a trail that Stevens said was a good one to take into the wild country.

"Reckon we'd better keep right on in the dark—till I drop," continued Stevens with a laugh.

All that night Duane, gloomy and thoughtful, attempted to doze, but the outlaw, walking the trail and never halted. Dawn caught the fugitives at a green camping site on the bank of a rocky little stream. Stevens fell a dead weight into Duane's arms, and one look at the haggard face showed Duane that the outlaw had taken his last ride. He knew it, too. Yet that cheerfulness prevailed.

"Buck, will you take off my boots?" he asked, with a faint smile on his pallid face.

Duane removed them, wondering if the outlaw had thought that he did not want to die with his boots on. Stevens seemed to read his mind.

"Buck, my old daddy used to say that I was born to be hanged. But I wasn't—an' don't with your boots on is the best way to crack."

"You've a chance in—no get over this," said Duane.

"Shore. But I want to be correct about the boots—an' say, pard, if I do go over, just you remember that I was appreciatin' your kindness."

This matter of the outlaw's boots was a queer, Duane thought. He made Stevens as comfortable as possible, then attended to his own needs. And the outlaw took up the thread of his conversation where he had left off the night before.

"This trail splits up a ways from here, an' every branch of it leads to a hole where you'll find men—a few, maybe, like yourself—some like me, an' gangs of no-good hoss thieves, rustlers an' such. It's easy livin', Buck. I reckon, though, that you'll find it easy. You'll never mix in. You'll be a lone wolf. I seen that right off. Wal, if a man can stand the loneliness, an' if he's quick on the draw, maybe lone-wolfin' is the best. Shore I don't know. But these fellows in here will be suspicious of a man who goes it alone. If they get a chance they'll kill you."

Stevens asked for water several times. He had forgotten or he did not want the whisky. His voice grew perceptibly weaker.

"Be quiet," said Duane. "Talkin' uses up your strength."

"Aw, I'll talk till I'm done," he replied, doggedly. "See here, pard, you an' gambler on what I'm tellin' you. An' I'll be use'd. From this camp on—you'll meet men right along. An' one of them will be honest men. All the same, some are better'n others. I've lived along the river for twelve years. There's three big gangs of outlaws. King Bland—you know him. I reckon, for he's half the time livin' among respectable folks. King is a real feller. I'll do to die up with him an' his gang. Now, there's Chas. King, who hangs out in the Rim Rock way up the river. He's an outlaw chief. I never seen him, though I typed once right in his camp. Late years he's got rich, an' keeps back pretty well hid. But Bland—I knowed Bland for years. An' I haven't any use for him. Bland has the biggest gang. You ain't likely to miss strikin'

He Made Stevens as Comfortable as Possible.

his place sometime or other. He's got a regular town, I might say. Shore there's some gambler an' gun-tighten' goin' on in Bland's camp all the time. Bland has killed some twenty men, an' he's not countin' greasers."

Here Stevens took another drink, and then rested for a while.

"You ain't likely to get on with Bland," he resumed presently. "You're too strappin' big an' good-lookin' to please the chief. For he's got women in his camp. Then he'd be jealous of your possibilities with a gun. Shore I reckon he'd be careful, though. Bland's no fool, an' he loves his hide. I reckon any of the other gangs would be better for you when you ain't got it alone."

Apparently that exhausted the fund of information and advice Stevens had been eager to impart. He lapsed into silence and lay with closed eyes. Meanwhile the sun rose warm; the breeze waved the mesquites; the birds came down to splash in the shallow stream; Duane dozed in a comfortable seat. By and by something roused him. Stevens was once more talking, but with a changed tone.

"Feller's name was Brown," he rambled. "We fell out—over a hoss I stole from him—in Huntsville. He stole it fast. Brown's one of them sneaks—afraid of the open—he steals an' pretends to be honest. Say, Buck, maybe you'll meet Brown some day. You an' me are pard's now."

"I'll remember, if I ever meet him," said Duane.

That seemed to satisfy the outlaw. Presently he tried to lift his head, but had not the strength. A strange shade was creeping across the bronzed, rough face.

"My feet are pretty heavy. Shore you got my boots off?"

Duane held them up, but was not certain that Stevens could see them. The outlaw closed his eyes again and uttered incoherently. Then he fell asleep. Toward sundown Stevens awoke, and his eyes seemed clearer. Duane went to get some fresh water, thinking his comrade would surely want some. When he returned Stevens made no sign that he wanted anything. There was something bright about him, and suddenly Duane realized what it meant.

"Pard, you—stick—to me!" the outlaw whispered.

Duane caught a hint of gladness in the voice; he traced a faint surprise in the haggard face. Stevens seemed like a little child.

Duane buried him in a shallow arroyo and heaped up a pile of stones to mark the grave. That done, he saddled his comrade's horse, hung the weapons over the pommel, and, mounting his own steed, he rode down the trail in the gathering twilight.

Citron Preserves. Pare citron and cut in slices one and one-half inch thick and about three inches long. To each pound of citron allow one pound of white sugar. First make your syrup, using one pint of water to every two pounds of sugar; skim well, then add fruit; boil one hour, or until tender; do not stir; after two hours, then, extracting the seeds; put this in the preserves with two ounces of root ginger (white). Do not boil longer after adding lemon. This is excellent if made carefully. If you cannot obtain citron, watermelon rind can be substituted, but soak overnight in alum water and boil in clear water twenty minutes next morning.

Gay Raincoats. Raincoats are now made of oil silk and are transparent. Bright reds, blues, lavender and green are some of the hues.

Examine Your TEETH Tonight

—after you clean them.

You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

Avoid Pyorrhea and decay. Get Senreco from your dealer today. In large tubes, 25c. Send 4c to Senreco, 304 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, for liberal-sized trial package.

GREENE COUNTY LOST ONE CHANCE TO GET A RAILROAD

Seventy-Five Years Ago the Inhabitants Would Not Let B. & O. In.

ARE IN A DIFFERENT MOOD NOW

And are Making strenuous Efforts to Insure Construction of the Wheeling & Eastern Mainline to Give
New Road Free Rights of Way.

The opportunity now presented by the people of Greene county to secure a railroad recalls an earlier period in the history of the county when a similar proposition was viewed with great disfavor. "Almost three-quarters of a century ago the Baltimore & Ohio railroad," says the Waynesburg Republican, "was kept out of Greene county by the opposition of her people and other influences, and down to this day, through the lives of three generations, no railroad has traversed the soil of the county from border to border as that great railroad proposed to do."

"The superstitious would say that a curse was placed upon Greene county by their action at that time, and when we look at adjoining counties, in both Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and note how they have been traversed, crossed and recrossed by important railroads, which developed their resources and enriched and benefited their people, even the most stolid of mind must reach the conclusion that there is some evidence of the curse."

"It is not that, from a superstitious sense, however, but it has been the curse of a neglected opportunity. Our grandfathers had the opportunity of admitting a great railroad system into Greene county, but they said 'No, we don't want it,' and their children and their children's children have not seen one here."

"Today, an opportunity is afforded to this generation in Greene county to admit a railroad which will traverse the county from her western to her eastern border. It is an important opportunity, because it will be an important railroad. Its building means the development of every natural resource in Greene county, the enrichment of the county, millions of dollars within a short time; it means benefit and profit to every resident of the county, farmer, laborer and business man."

"For the past ten years Greene county has experienced financial reverses; there have been many losses and many failures and the present outlook is for more failures unless conditions change. The building of the Wheeling & Eastern railroad would verily dig us out of a grave! It would make a demand for Greene county's untapped coal veins now lying dormant. Already it is understood that as soon as the railroad is started several new coal operations will be commenced so that the coal mines will be ready for shipping as soon as the railroad is completed. There is no question as to the truth of this, because investors in large blocks of Greene county coal acreage would have opened mines several years ago, had they been given railroad facilities for shipping their coal."

"The Wheeling and Eastern railroad company, the directors of which are largely iron and steel manufacturers, glass manufacturers and other business men of Wheeling, ask that Greene county people furnish a free right of way for the railroad through this county. We have not yet heard of any resident of our county pronouncing this demand unreasonable. Already nearly all the rights of way have been granted to the Wheeling & Eastern railroad from Wheeling to the Greene county line, near Morgantown, and we are informed that not a foot of right of way has been granted to any other railroad, thus showing the desire of the people for the Wheeling & Eastern railroad and their confidence that the people behind it will build it."

"The officials of the company urge the securing of right of way at once, as it is their desire to let the contracts for the construction of the road as soon as possible. Already contractors are in Wheeling to make estimates upon the work. Property owners along the surveyed line through Greene county will be visited as soon as local committees can get to them, asking for the right of way."

WHY CAR ORDERS HAVE DECLINED

Inability of Car Builders to Obtain Steel Principal Cause; Some Orders Changed to Wood.

Orders for railroad equipment during the last month or two have fallen off considerably, but it must not be assumed that the railroads are any less desirous of obtaining new cars. They are fairly well supplied with locomotives, it appears, but they could obtain early deliveries of equipment, their orders for cars would tend a strong stimulus to the market. It seems, according to a current report, that about 15,000 cars were not ordered during July because of inability to build them promptly for the crop-moving season.

It is said that the car-building companies continue to be hampered by inability of the steel makers to furnish them with the necessary materials for car construction, this being especially true for orders demanding all-steel equipment, but it is also a fact regarding orders demanding a partial use of steel. Some time ago, the Southern Railway Company in placing a large order for cars, reduced the amount of steel to be used in their construction, providing for only steel center sills instead of all-steel underframes, considerations of price due to the advance in the cost of steel being a factor in the case as well as the desire to expedite delivery of the equipment. Still other railroads, unable to secure deliveries of steel cars, have changed their specifications to all wood.

Expressions of opinion from several of the large car builders agree that specifications for wooden cars recently were the result of the crowded condition of the steel trade and inability to obtain material from the steel mills as well as a consequence of the advance in price of that material. Railroads found that cars could be built immediately if wood alone was used, excepting for such parts as absolutely required the use of steel, and they drew their specifications accordingly. There is no belief that railroads will return to a general use of wooden freight cars, but that when the extraordinary conditions of the steel trade are no more the use of steel as before in car building will be resumed.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA" will be shown at the Soisson Theatre with Jean Southern in the leading role. Howard Fairbrook appears as Dr. Alden who happens along in time to save Myra. It is an interesting serial concerning the occult phenomena. "Onda of the Orient," a Gold Seal three reel photoplay, featuring Marie Walcamp and Eddie Polo should be particularly interesting, because these two stars are at present occupied in filming the great war serial, "Liberty." The plot concerns the attempt of Onda to locate half of a will her father left her in the shape of a dagger. "The Henanpup," a Bowers juvenile comedy in which two children by combining the skeleton of a dog and a chicken complete a foot a half-witted professor Tomorrow (as Red Feather production, "The Iron Hand") with Robert Bosworth and Jane Novak in the leading roles. Wednesday the Bluebird feature, "The Secret of the Swamp," featuring Myrtle Gonzalez.

THE PARAMOUNT.

THE QUINTER—A Metro attraction with Lionel Barrymore in the title role is today's feature attraction. The picture contains all the elements that made western pictures popular years ago and presents Mr. Barrymore in the type of character that he has portrayed with marked success ever since his debut as a picture actor in the early Biograph days. The situation in which the picture opens is familiar enough. The miners of Paradise Gulch feel that their paradise might be enlivened by the presence of a pretty woman, therefore happy Jack Lewis is selected as a suitable husband, an advertisement is inserted in a newspaper and Glad Mason is drawn to the womanless Eden. Much is made of the preparations of the miners and the dismay of Happy Jack as the hour approaches for the intended bride. Finally he boards a train for parts unknown and Glad is met at the station by a reception committee comprised of the elusive bridegroom's friends. As the girl more than fulfills the promise of her photograph the residents of Paradise Gulch become keen rivals for the place of Happy Jack. Their efforts to win the favor of Glad give rise to a number of incidents that are humorous in an elementary way. How the "Quilter" returns, wins Glad and becomes the owner of a valuable claim is set forth without disclosing the surprise reserved for the concluding reel. A clever touch in direction is the use made of a puppy which remains in Happy Jack's coat pocket throughout one of the most severe of his encounters. Margaret Skelvin appears very pleasing as Glad Tuesday's attractions are "A Thousand Dollar Husband," with Blanche Sweet in the leading role, and Gloria's Romance, starring, Billie Burke. Wednesday, Dorothy Gish will be seen in "The Little Man," Thursday "The Shop Girl," featuring Edith Storey, will be the attraction.

Eight Foot Melkman Battle Snake. Is now on exhibition in the show window at the Connellsville Drug Co. Dr. Cain, one of Pittsburg's noted foot specialists, is here this week.
